Other Research & Data Services

The Institute prepares demographic and economic profiles of communities, counties, and regions. Specialty reports include labor market data; occupation and industry trends and projections; education data; and health and social service data.

The Institute reports include data tables, in-depth analysis, and a summary of trends and key findings. Reports can also provide custom maps to show geographic patterns in the data. Data provides the foundation for informed decision making. The Institute's data and customized analysis is critical for making strategic decisions.

The Institute has served the following types of clients:

- Existing employers comparing regional wages.
- Post-secondary education institutions evaluating education offerings and programs.
- Companies looking to expand/relocate evaluating local workforce capabilities.
- Economic developers for planning and marketing purposes.
- K-12 educators looking to expand comprehensive career readiness programs.
- Chambers of Commerce providing information to their members and/or for program development.
- Non-profit and public organizations needing data for grant proposals or programming.
